

Ketevan Tsulukidze

University – Mykolas Romeris University

Field of Studies – Public relations management

Previous experiences in ERUA events/activities (if you do not have any, comment what you expect from ERUA) - I am excited about the possibilities and opportunities ERUA offers. I anticipate engaging in a wide range of educational activities, from workshops to seminars, that cover various disciplines and contemporary issues, which would help broaden my academic horizons and enhance my knowledge base. Being part of ERUA means interacting with students and academics from different European universities, and this cultural exchange can enrich my understanding of diverse perspectives and foster a sense of global citizenship. I expect to participate in collaborative research and projects that address real-world problems, working with peers from different backgrounds and disciplines to develop teamwork and problem-solving skills. Networking opportunities with students, faculty, and professionals across Europe will be invaluable for my future academic and career endeavors. Additionally, I am eager to develop both hard skills (like technical proficiency) and soft skills (such as communication and leadership) through skill-building workshops and training sessions.

Your hobbies and interests shortly and major?

I am a dancer specializing in Georgian dances, which bring me immense joy and fulfillment. Dancing not only makes me happy but also connects me to my cultural heritage. Additionally, I have a deep passion for literature and enjoy reading a wide range of genres, from classic novels to contemporary fiction. I love hiking and exploring nature, which helps me stay active and connected to the environment. I also have an interest in photography, particularly capturing landscapes and candid moments. My major is Computer Science, where I am particularly interested in artificial intelligence and data science, and I enjoy working on projects that combine these fields with real-world applications.

Why did you become an ambassador for ERUA? What inspires you?

I became an ambassador for ERUA because I am passionate about fostering international collaboration and cultural exchange within the academic community. Being part of ERUA allows me to contribute to creating a vibrant and inclusive environment where students and academics from diverse backgrounds can come together to share knowledge, ideas, and experiences. What inspires me the most is the opportunity to bridge cultural gaps and promote mutual understanding among students from different European universities. The chance to facilitate interdisciplinary projects and collaborative research that address real-world challenges also motivates me. Additionally, I am inspired by the potential to help others develop both academically and personally, encouraging them to embrace new perspectives and grow as global citizens.

Co-Founded by the European Union