

Ekin Furuncu

- Field of Studies: Bachelor's Degree in Psychology at Mykolas Romeris University.
- Previous experiences in ERUA events/activities: None yet — this is my first experience as an ambassador and I'm excited to take part in it.
- Hobbies and interests: I enjoy deep conversations, exploring philosophy and psychology, and connecting with people from different cultures. In my free time, I love traveling, journaling, and learning languages. I'm also passionate about education, communication, and self-growth.
- Why did you become an ambassador for ERUA? What inspires you?: I became an ERUA ambassador because I strongly believe in building meaningful connections across cultures and disciplines. As a Turkish student living and studying in Lithuania, I know how transformative international education can be. This role gives me a chance to support and inspire other students navigating similar paths. It also aligns with my values — openness, growth, and collaboration. I see this opportunity not only as a way to contribute to a larger academic community but also to develop skills in leadership, communication, and intercultural understanding.
