I am a third-year Psychology student at SWPS University. I also spent one semester studying in Spanish at the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid as part of the Erasmus+ programme. The areas of psychology that interest me the most are cross-cultural and business psychology. I love travelling, discovering new cultures and endurance sports - especially long-distance running. I became an ERUA Ambassador because I see great value in sharing experiences among international students and inspiring each other in a cross-cultural environment. I believe that by working together and viewing things from different perspectives, we can make a meaningful impact on higher education — and that is what motivates me the most.
