

Behnam Ramezanpour

ERUA Student Ambassador

Field of Studies : International Finance and Economics

Hobbies and interests:

Outside my academic life, I am interested in activities that keep me curious and connected with people. I enjoy discovering different cultures through travel, conversations, local traditions, food, and music, because these experiences help me understand people beyond formal academic settings.

I am also interested in technology, innovation, and the way digital tools are transforming education, work, and society. This interest is closely related to my studies in finance and economics, especially my curiosity about artificial intelligence and future professional skills.

As an international student in Italy, I also value languages and intercultural communication. Improving my Italian has become an important part of my daily life, helping me feel more connected to the local community and more confident in international environments.

Motivation to become an ambassador for ERUA:

I originally come from Mashhad, Iran, and my academic and professional journey has connected different fields and environments. Before studying International Finance and Economics at the University of Macerata, I completed a Master's degree in Industrial Engineering and gained several years of experience in the automotive and electronics sectors.

This background has shaped the way I see education not only as the acquisition of knowledge, but also as a way to connect people, disciplines, and perspectives. ERUA represents this vision through its focus on openness, innovation, inclusion, and cooperation.

I became an ERUA Student Ambassador because I wanted to be part of a community where students are encouraged to participate actively and contribute beyond their own degree programmes. After my first year, my motivation has become stronger, because I have seen how ERUA can create real opportunities for mobility, dialogue, and personal growth.
