

Klimenti Andguladze

ERUA Student Ambassador

Field of Studies: Territory and Society

Hobbies and interests: Personally, I am defined by curiosity, movement, and engagement with other cultures. I am passionate about cultural travel, conversations that open up new perspectives, and activities that combine energy, discipline, and creativity. I enjoy running, tending to plants, and participating in dynamic experiences, ranging from sports to more acrobatic activities or those related to martial arts and contact sports.

Motivation to become an ambassador for ERUA: ERUA inspires me because it promotes a more open, international, and connected university. Based on my own experience, I particularly value initiatives like this one, since not all young people grow up in environments with the same institutional, political, or financial support to access opportunities for mobility, academic exchange, and university engagement.

My motivation as an ambassador is to bring ERUA closer to other students in a human and approachable way, showing that the world is full of diverse realities and that studying in Europe offers opportunities worth making the most of. I would like to encourage other students to participate, travel, collaborate, get to know the world better, and contribute, from the university, to building a more open, conscious, and egalitarian society.
