ERUA Student Ambassador

Field of Studies: International Business Administration

Hobbies and interests: I love cooking, swimming, and exploring new cultures—especially through conversations and shared experiences. Traveling and learning are my ways of staying connected to the world and constantly evolving.

Motivation to become an ambassador for ERUA:
My journey with ERUA began at the alliance's kick-off meeting at Viadrina, and since then I've taken part in several workshops—one of the most recent being "Between 'green,' growth, and right-wing populism".

Co-funded by the European Union

A real highlight for me was representing Viadrina at the Youth Forum on Sustainability and Climate Change at the University of Las Palmas. These experiences gave me understanding of ERUA's mission and the power of student-led dialogue across borders.

Becoming an ERUA Student Ambassador feels like a natural step. I'm inspired by how ERUA values diversity, critical thinking, and student empowerment. I believe every person should have access to perspectives, spaces to be heard, and opportunities to co-create change. I'm excited to help make those spaces more visible and accessible within our community.

Looking forward to what we'll build together!
